This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

 All Norfolk Antiquaries will join with me in thanking Mr. Dew for the indefatigable labour he has expended in getting together the materials of this book, which contains Transcripts of every Inscription and Notes of all Armoury in each Church, as well as of every Churchyard Inscription in the Hundred of Holt. They will be glad to hear that he is contemplating an attack on South Erpingham, to be brought out in a similar way. North Erpingham has already been printed by me, and I have Tunstead and Happing ready for the press, while Mr. Dew and I are thinking of jointly venturing on the two Fleggs; so in two or three years I hope we may reckon on seeing the whole of the Monumental Inscriptions of North-east Norfolk safe in print, and defying the ruthless hands of church restorers.

BAYFIELD.

The ivy-mantled ruins of the church of St. Margaret stand near the stately mansion of Sir Alfred Jodrell, Bart., and add a pleasing feature to the picturesque scenery around.

BLAKENEY, SNETTERLEY, OR SNITTERLEY.

It is generally granted that Blakeney and Snetterley are one and the same. The name "Blakeney" appears to have come into use in the fourteenth century. There are several objects of interest in this parish: its grand old church, standing boldly at an elevation of 116 feet above the sea, with its two towers, conspicuous sea-marks of this monotonous coast; the ruins of its Carmelite friary, the college, which claims John de Baconsthorpe,* "the resolute Doctor," as its illustrious student; and the heap of stones which marks the site of a monastic chapel on the Ey, where the fishermen of ancient Blakeney presented their offerings of fish at the altar of their patron saint St. Nicholas, to whom the spacious parish church is dedicated. On plan the church comprises chancel, nave with clerestory, north and south aisles, north porch, western tower, 104 feet high; and a small tower at the north-east corner of the chancel. The chancel dates from the twelfth century, and contains a stone vaulted roof, a window of seven lights filled with stained glass, aumbries, sedilia, traces of an Easter sepulchre, and miserere stalls. The lower portion of the chancel screen still remains. The entrance to the rood-loft can be seen in the east end of the north aisle, presumably St. Thomas' Chapel, which, like that of the east end of the south aisle (Lady Chapel), contains a piscina. The old rood-beam with its gilt fleur-de-lis tracery still spans the nave above the chancel arch. The carved screens still remain, and many of the benches have poppy heads in the nave and miserere stalls—relics of the White Monks. The nave, aisles, porch, and towers date from the early part of the fifteenth century. The oak roofs, now carefully restored, are rich specimens of mediæval work. The octagonal font is sculptured with the Evangelists and their emblems. The solitary bell in the western tower bears the inscription, "Thomas Newman made mee 1699." On the north buttress is a shield, Three mitres, two and one, the lowest pierced with a crozier. On the west buttress of the north aisle is a shield bearing the emblems of the Passion. On the south buttress of the tower is a shield bearing a dolphin embowed, within a border of escallops, and supporting a cross in an escutcheon.

It may be interesting to note the date M°:CCCC:XXX:V, which occurs in an obliterated Latin sentence, on the north-western buttress of the large tower, as the date of the erection of the nave, aisles, and towers. I have the leaden seal of a papal bull,

* He was the son of Sir Thomas Bacon, Knt., of Baconsthorpe; born about the end of the thirteenth century, died at London in 1346.

probably obtained from the Pope, authorizing the work. It bears on the reverse, "Gregorius P. P. XI." Temp. 1370 to 1378.

The orthography of the Christian name "Scheppard," on the brass No. 32, is worthy of notice as determining its antiquity. Chaucer in his Canterbury Tales mentions "A . . . scheppard and a clene schepe."

BRINTON.

The Church is dedicated to St. Andrew, and consists on plan of chancel, nave, north transept, aisle, south porch, and square tower. During the restoration of this Church in 1873 traces of Saxon work were discovered. Many interesting antiquities have been restored and put in situ, to wit, a large holy water stoup, a Transition Norman pedestal piscina, a small image of the patron saint; and passages from Scripture re-decorate the walls. The east window of the chancel filled with stained glass: subject—the Epiphany, and a richly-carved reredos of oak, have a pleasing effect.

BURGH PARVA.

Is not mentioned in Domesday Book. It takes its name from its situation at the source of the Bure. The church of St. Mary has long been in ruins, which show it consisted of chancel, nave, and a square embattled tower.

CLEY-NEXT-THE-SEA, ORIGINALLY CLEY-THORPE.

THE Church, dedicated to St. Margaret the Virgin, is one of the finest edifices in the county. It consists of chancel, nave with clerestory, aisles, porches, square embattled tower at the west end of the north aisle, transepts now in ruins, and traces of an entrance to the nave on the west. The chancel contains six richly-carved miserere stalls, piscina, and sedilia; the communion table stands on the five-crossed altar-slab of pre-Reformation date. The pulpit is a fine specimen of Jacobæan work, bearing the date 1611, in excellent preservation. The rood-loft stairs remain in situ, with entrances from the chancel and north aisle. Many of the bench ends are grotesquely carved. Remains of elaborate canopies for saints are shown between the arches of the nave, and exteriorly many of the buttresses show traces of niches for figures. The wreathed crosses crowning the gables of the nave are worthy of notice. The font is unique, bearing the Seven Sacraments, the only specimen in this Hundred. The nave, 106 feet 1 inch by 28 feet, in the Decorated style, is lighted by a fine west and lancet and quatrefoil clerestory windows. The south wall of the south transept is pierced by a rich Decorated window. The south porch, in the Perpendicular style, has a vaulted stone roof above, which is a parvise. About the arch are the following arms:—

1. A cross (tinctures not shown).
2. Two swords in saltire.
3. Three escalops, two and one.
4. A saltire.
5. ..... (effaced).
6. A cup with a serpent issuing from it.

13. A lion rampant.
14. An escutcheon between eight martlets.
15. Chequée.
16. A cross.
17. Quarterly, 1 and 4, a double eagle displayed; 2 and 3, a lion rampant, impaling, quarterly, 1 and 4, three fleur-de-lis; 2 and 3, three lions.
18. Emblems of the Passion.
19. Emblem of the Trinity.
20. A chevron impaling three water bougets, two and one.

From Blomefield to the compilers of the latest Directory I find "John" Greve copied for James Greeve (temp. Charles II.) a name of historic worth for its connection, as the inscription on the altar tomb sets forth, with Sir Cloudesly Shovel, whose birthplace Cley has claimed to have been.

The Norfolk Tour [vol. ii., p. 773] remarks: "The inscription to John Symond and family, 1518, is remarkable for the brass having an inverted inscription, no other is known in Norfolk." I am led to think that the brass is inverted by a blunder, perhaps, of some eighteenth century workman, who probably re-fastened it. The workman of the day would never have placed the brass so that the name of Rose occurs underneath the portraiture of John. I am quite at a loss as to where writers on this interesting edifice get the date 1429 from the brass of John Yslyngton, S.T.P.; also for nearly every description of this brass I have seen, asserting that the Doctor's "arms cross each other," which is incorrect.

GLANDFORD.

THE Church, dedicated to St. Martin, has long been in ruins. It appears to have comprised a chancel, nave, north porch, and aisle, and a square embattled tower. There are traces of the rood-loft stairs.

The churchyard has recently been used, after a lapse of a hundred and forty-two years.

GUNTHORPE.

THE Church, dedicated to St. Mary, is built in the Early English style. It was thoroughly restored in 1863, at the expense of the late Canon Sparke. It consists, on plan, of chancel, nave, organ-chamber, north transept, south porch, and square tower. The chancel contains a handsome marble reredos, sedilia, piscina, and fine stained windows, that of the east—"In Mem. Henrici Astley Sparke qui cecidit in armis Balaklavæ XXV Oct. A.D. MDCCCLIV Aet. sæ XXVI." In a canopied niche over the porch is sculptured the Annunciation, with the inscription, "Ave Maria gratia plena." The font bears the Evangelistic emblems, and the following arms on plain shields:—

HOLT.

THE church, dedicated to St. Andrew, consists on plan of chancel, nave with clerestory and aisles, south porch, and a square embattled tower. The chancel contains piscina and sedilię. The communion table was presented by Sir Alfred Jodrell, Bart., in memory of his late brother, Edward Jodrell, Esq. It is made of cedar wood, grown on the Bayfield estate, and olive wood from Italy. The windows of the chancel are filled with beautiful stained glass. The pulpit, reading desk, (eagle) lectern, choir stalls, and seats are of oak. The church registers are very old and contain curious entries.

The Gresham Grammar School of this town was founded by Sir John Gresham, Knt. Over the school door are his arms: Argent, a chevron ermine, between three mullets pierced sable. Crest: A grasshopper vert. The inscription: "Off the ffoundation of Sr John Gresham Knight and Alderman of the Citie of London 1562." Another: azure, three dolphins naiant in pale argent, finned and ducally crowned or, between two pairs of luces in saltire (the sinister surmounting the dexter) proper, over the nose of each luce a ducal crown of the third, on a chief gules three pairs of keys endorsed in saltire or (Fishmongers' Company).

12. At the foot of this Monument and in his Father's Grave are deposited the Remains of Edmund Newdigate M.D. He was born at Holt May 14th 1702 and died at Ipswich in Suffolk April 2nd 1779. At eighteen he was admitted at Caius College Cambridge and took his Doctor's Degree in 1727. Immediately after leaving Cambridge he went abroad and spent some time at Leyden, under the great Dr Doerheave. Upon his return to England, he first settled at Watton in Norfolk where he practised with great success many years but in 1748 he removed to Ipswich where his great learning and extensive abilities soon fixed him high in his Profession and the esteem of his Brethren. Nor was he more eminent as a physician than amiable as a man being bless'd with a most humane disposition, a thorough integrity of Heart and a warm affection for all mankind. He left his Paternal Estate considerably improved to his only and greatly beloved Sister Mary Newdigate, now living at Ipswich, who from tender affection has caused this Monument to be erected to his Memory. A.D. 1784.
Arms: Gules, three lions' gambs argent.

LETHERINGSETT.

THE Church, dedicated to St. Andrew, dates from the twelfth century. It consists of chancel, nave with aisles and clerestory, south porch, and a round tower. It has been thoroughly restored; the chancel furnished with oak stalls, and the nave with open benches. The pulpit was given in memory of a member of the Jodrell family, at whose expense were placed stained windows in the chancel and north aisle. The octagonal font is of black marble, supported by eight pillars, similar to those of Langham and Stody in this Hundred.

3. This monument is erected by Dame Anne, Wife of Sir Edward Astley Bart., to the memory of Anna Maria their only Daughter In Testimony of the Maternal Affection of the One, and of the Filial Merit of the Other.

Reader!

If thou canst conceive that Parents joy,
Who in a Child beholds
All that a Mother's fondest Wish could Frame,
Thou mayst then catch some Idea
Of Her former Happiness,
And when thou knowest
That Heaven lent Her this Domestick Blessing
But for the short space
Of eight years and three months,
Thou wilt not sure rèfuse
A sympathetic tear to soothe
Her present Anguish.

March 29th 1763.

MORSTON.

THE Church is dedicated to All Saints, and consists on plan of nave, with clerestory, north and south porches, and a square tower. The nave shows traces of battlements. The chancel contains a fine stone reredos and piscina. There is also a piscina at the east end of the south aisle. Part of an elaborate chancel screen remains; on the panels are painted the Evangelists and the four Doctors of the Church: SS. Augustine, Gregory, Ambrose, Chrysostom. The font is ancient, and bears rude representations of the Evangelists and their emblems.

SALTHOUSE.

THE Church, dedicated to St. Nicholas, was built in 1508 by Sir Henry Heydon. It consists on plan of chancel, nave with clerestory, aisles, porches, and a square embattled tower. The chancel contains piscina and sedilia. There is also a piscina at the east end of the south aisle. Several poppy-headed benches and carved tracery remain; a screen, presumably in situ of the Lady Chapel, bears several initial letters H, surmounted by what appears to be mitres. The font is sculptured with the evangelistic emblems: Passion, Trinity, &c. Over two of the arches of the nave are carved on shields: .... a cross engrailed* .... impaling, quarterly, 1st and 4th, ... a chevron .... between three bulls' heads .... 2nd and 3rd per pale ....

WEYBOURNE.

THIS Parish contains many objects of interest—the remains of its Priory; its Church with its traces of Saxon work; its Romano-British potter's kiln; and the collection of tumuli in the vicinity.

The Priory, the remains of which stand around the present Church, was founded either in the reign of Henry II. or that of John, probably in the latter. At its dissolution in 1535 it passed into the estate of Richard Heydon.

The Church, dedicated to All Saints, consists on plan of chancel, nave, south porch, and square embattled tower. Forming part of the nave wall stand the remains of a square Saxon tower. The chancel contains a pillar piscina and sedilia, and it may be noted as the only chancel in the Hundred containing an altar piece. The pulpit is Jacobæan work. There are several poppy-headed benches. On the bell: "Thomas Newton made mee 1603." Over the chancel arch: This Church was new pew'd Anno Domini 1819. John Bolding, Churchwarden.

IN THE CHURCH.

1. Brass. Here lieth ye Body of Valentine Moore late of this towne who in his life was freindly to the poore & at his death gave divers legases both to this tow'e & others. He died the 10th of June 1593.
